making IT happen

With the integration of Internet into one's daily life as well as the rapid advancement in multimedia technologies, media rich e-Learning is fast becoming a reality. We will also see the transformation of assessment from a traditional paper-based to an electronic one which provides affordances for new form of assessment as well as the ability to provide immediate feedback to both the educator and learner. Such instant feedback helps the educator in planning early intervention.

However, most electronic assessments are not easy to manage and has a steep learning curve to properly utilise it and they are often limited in the platform that the assessments can be delivered to. In addition automation for grading is not sufficient without the use of analytics, thus creating inefficiency in the learning and feedback process.

Traditional learning management systems offer a full fledge of functions which may be an overkill for many organisations and they could be paying a subscription for a whole lot of features which they are not using at all.

Assessment

LearningConnect assessment module is made up of a question bank which consists of various questions created by subject matter experts, as well as those imported from external sources.

The assessment supports a variety of question types which enables assessment to take on different formats to better test the candidates' analytical strengths and thought processes. Most of the questions type can be graded by the system automatically, thus shortening the response time to candidates and also reduces the possibility of human errors during the grading process.

The assessment module also brings the convenience of creating tests based on parameters such as question type, difficulty and subject from its question bank. This allows assessments to be quickly created without much effort.

Assessment can be generated based on defined templates, giving the freedom to create tests in a format that best matches individual needs.

Analysis

Through the completion of the assessment, educator will be able to perform analysis on the results with a comprehensive suite of analysis tools which identify the strengths and weaknesses of each individual.

Educators have the ability to make use of the analytic tools to help to check if the distractors are useful and whether there is a need to improve the quality of the question.

Delivery

With LearningConnect, candidates will be able to receive the grading on their tests faster through grade books. It also enables educators to intervene and help improve the candidate's ability more quickly when compared to the traditional teaching methods.

Supporting a wide variety of platforms to deliver assessment, LearningConnect ensures that assessments can be conducted through any electronic devices and even through paper-based media. This gives a greater flexibility when conducting assessments for the candidates.
